People Helping People Kathryn Christiansen, Executive Director

As the oldest of nine children, Kathryn learned at an early age to be first to the table, to be patient, have a sense of humor, and that if you want something you need to work for it. Being thrust into adulthood as a teen mother, and a divorced young mother of 3 a few years later, she has always been intent on not being a statistic, defining her own path, aligning herself with examples of success, and showing her children that you can in fact be anything that you want to be! Kathryn is best known for her ability to problem solve and as the eternal optimist. If there is a will, there is a way!

After years of struggling with her own self-worth while navigating single motherhood as the primary breadwinner, she knows firsthand the impact that mentors and a great support system have on achieving success and building the confidence needed to push past limiting beliefs and barriers.

With more than 20 years of entrepreneurial experience she has seen her share of trial and error and understands the challenges faced by single mothers and women in the world of work. She has successfully launched more than a dozen companies, the WNG Women’s Entrepreneurial Conference, and has helped train and mentor hundreds of women.

Now as the Executive Director for People Helping People, a local grassroots non-profit that works with women in our community teaching them how to reach self-sufficiency through successful employment, her passion for mentoring women and single mothers is realized in her daily interactions; helping them find the strength to overcome challenges, re-invent, and not let their past define their futures.

Kathryn lives in Bountiful with her long-awaited Prince Charming and credits her success to her 4 children who tolerate crazy work hours, mood swings, and who provide her with inspiration to push through every day. Her hope is for every woman to stand in their truth and live to their full potential.
