Utah Demographics

Mallory Bateman

Mallory Bateman is a Senior Research Analyst and the Utah State Data Center Coordinator at the Kem C. Gardner Policy

Institute, who has been working in issue research and community engagement in Utah for the past decade. She has a BA in Urban Planning from the University of Utah and a Masters in Social Policy and Planning from the London School of Economics.

She is passionate about helping to facilitate and create change for my community. She does this by crafting narratives about communities through demographic data, translating technical concepts into approachable language, helping people find the data or assets they are looking for, and navigating diverse stakeholder groups and working committees to find solutions.

The State Data Center is a partnership program with the Census Bureau, making me the point person for anyone with questions about programs or products from the Census Bureau. This position allows her to interact with the community by providing trainings, fact sheets, or answering questions about how to find data. She presents to stakeholders across the community, from small groups to large audiences.

She was the Chair of the 2020 Census Technical Advisory Committee, which ensured that none of the background processes fall through the cracks with our governmental agencies and other partners. She is a member of the national State Data Center Steering Committee.

Her research is focused on analysis of Census products in a Utah context, with specific emphasis on cities and counties. If you have any questions about the latest ACS release or comparing Gardner Institute estimates to the Census estimates, she is happy to help.
